Dongying Town is in the northeastern part of Lingao County, Hainan Province, China. With advantages of its location and well-connected transportation, Dongying is now a key gateway for Lingao County to join in regional development. Covering a total area of 89.61 square kilometers, the town governs 13 villages/communities and 49 natural villages, with an approximately 29,702 registered population.

Dongying is renowned for its exceptional natural ecology. It features a 14.5-kilometer pristine coastline that is celebrated as the most beautiful coastal scenery in northwestern Hainan. It encompasses 7 coastal villages, 2 natural seaside bathing areas, a second-class port, a provincial White Butterfly Shellfish reserve, a Gaoshanling provincial nature reserve, and a county-level coral reef nature reserve that spans 10 kilometers long and 5 kilometers wide, hosting vibrant coral reefs and seaweed communities, known as a "underwater forest", and admired for their fantastic colors and gorgeous beauty. Additionally, the town preserves two of Lin'gao's Eight Ancient Scenic Spots: the Gaoshan Temple and the Sacred Rain in the Dragon Pool.

Since designated an International Slow City in October 2023, Dongying Town has enjoyed rapid development in its tourist industry. It now hosts 21 homestays, within which 2 are rated as provincial "gold-rated homestay" and "silver-rated homestay" respectively. The town has established 2 provincial-level shared farmsteads, 2 five-coconut-level rural tourism sites, and has seen 4 villages listed as provincial demonstration projects of rural revitalization and 3 villages selected for Hainan's "100 Featured Tourism Villages" initiative.

The town achieves increasing popularity and tourist attractiveness by holding a series of distinctive cultural and sport events, including "the 1st Anniversary of Dongying International Slow City", "the 2024 International Leisure Fishing Competition", and "the Slow City Beach Camping Season". In 2024, the town welcomed 180,000 tourist visits, marking a 33.33% year-on-year increase.
